AUSTRIAN EVACUATION OF VENICE—AN EXCITING SCENE.—There was a tramping of feet along the narrow passage beside my hotel at 4 o'clock this morning. As the footfalls grew fainter and fainter, there was a hoarse word of command, and a hurrying forward of the rear-most files. Then there was a dead silence again, and we had the last of the Austrians in Venice. At 5 o'clock I found the National Guard in possession of St. Marks, the field pieces at the corner of the ducal palace had been taken away, and a group of shivering spectators had collected under the colonnade, where not a sign of the iron railings could now be detected. It was very cold—cold even for an October night in England, but there was clear starlight overhead, and promise of fine weather during the festival. How well that promise was fulfilled, and how the first day of freedom was as bright and cheerful as the most sanguine could have hoped, Venice will long remember. By 8 o'clock the city was partially decked with tricolor flags, for public impatience was not restrained, and by 8.30 there was an immense concourse of people assembled on the Place of St. Mark, with the very eye bent upon the tall red flag-staffs of the old Republic. A space had been cleared immediately around their pedestals, and a hollow square formed by the National Guard kept open this space. At the foot of each flag-staff was a huge tricolor bearing the Cross of Savoy and a royal crown upon its centre, and ready bent for hoisting. More and more people came; the minutes were counted with breathless eagerness. Now there was a murmur and clapping of hands. The first stroke of 9—the second. In the name of United Italy, hoist away. "Bravo! bravo! God! God!" cry the people near me. "Our martyrs are with us this morning," said a white-haired gentleman, turning aside to conceal his sobs, whilst the boys throw up their caps and shout. "Long live the King!" As at Verona, it is the old folks who are most affected. Wave out upon the breeze, stately flag, and assure them that it is not a dream. But they need no assurance. An exultant throng of human voices has drowned the sound of the music, and presently those antique palaces, which are awaking to renewed life, echo back the still louder thunder of artillery. —Venice Correspondence London Times, Oct. 19.

DISCOURAGING EMIGRATION.—The Poles who arrived in this country for the purpose of settling, and are now located on the Decker farm, were met by busy ladies in town, who had no business of their own to attend to, and very disinterestedly informed that the lands upon which they were to locate were the poorest in Virginia, that they could not make a living upon them, and all that sort of thing. The Poles wended their way to their new homes under very discouraging circumstances, but were glad to learn from General Tothman, that after a personal examination, they expressed themselves not only satisfied, but pleased.

We regretted to find the General suffering from the effects of a fall on Friday, but do not anticipate any serious results. The land upon which the colony has settled is not rich land, but when it is borne in mind that it was sold at $5 an acre, none of the money in hand, and a credit running to the end of six years, it cannot be viewed as a very hard bargain. As far as outside remark is concerned, it would be well to remember that no farm was ever sold in this country that gave entire satisfaction to everybody—particularly those who had no interest, whatever, in the sale; neither has there ever been an improvement projected that did not forth dolorous complaints from the same crew, who never do anything themselves, and are equally unwilling that other people should do for them. —Fredericksburg Herald.

NEW WATER PROPELLER.—When the Waterwitch glides into a foreign port, under full water, she will astonish the spectators as completely as the Chinese were astonished at first seeing ships under steam. The last new plan of making a ship seaworthy consists in sending her to the water, and then fitting her with the very latest pattern, we now take a well built craft and bore a number of small holes in her bottom, then fit her with a water-wheel, and so send her to sea. The Waterwitch, with all her novelty, is still literally a steamer. She has engines of 160 horse power, which turn a huge water-wheel 14 feet in diameter, and weighing eight tons. The water required for her work is admitted through holes in the bottom of a vessel to a long iron box, somewhat analogous to the "well" of a Thames punt in which gudgeon are kept alive. Then the wheel put in motion by the steam engine, sucks in this water, and discharges it with immense force through what we may call the water guns to slide the ship. The form and shape given to these pipes for the generation of the required force will be seen in the report, but what remains to be ascertained is the comparative cheapness and general advantages of the force itself.—London Times.

Whereas, Having entered the field for the Fall and Winter Campaign of trade, I am determined to repulse, if not entirely vanquish, the great system of monstrous prices, and enormous profits, which have settled upon our whole country like a mighty incubus, sinking the poor into deeper depths of poverty, and dragging down the affluent, and even driving many to distraction; and Therefore, I, CHAS. A. GLADKE, 119 King street, between Pitt and Prince, do hereby issue this my proclamation, to dispose of my new stock, upon such terms as must give entire satisfaction.
